Code of Ethics

West Midlands Police is committed to ensuring that the Code of Ethics is not simply another piece of paper, poster or laminate, but is at the heart of every policy, procedure, decision and action in policing.

The Code of Ethics is about self-awareness, ensuring that everyone in policing feels able to always do the right thing and is confident to challenge colleagues irrespective of their rank, role or position

Every single person working in West Midlands Police is expected to adopt and adhere to the principles and standards set out in the Code.

The main purpose of the Code of Ethics is to be a guide to "good" policing, not something to punish "poor" policing.

The Code describes nine principles and ten standards of behaviour that sets and defines the exemplary standards expected of everyone who works in policing.

Please see http://www.college.police.uk/docs/Code_of_Ethics.pdf for further details.

The policy contained in this document seeks to build upon the overarching principles within the Code to further support people in the organization to do the right thing.

3. INTRODUCTION.

3.1. West Midlands Police heavily rely on information assets to serve customer, regulatory and other stakeholder needs. An effective policy and framework of controls, covering classification, protection, recording, retention, and storage is required to protect critical information assets against known threats and reduce the overall risk to organisational operations.

4. ASSET MANAGEMENT POLICY.

4.1. Formal documented standards and procedures should be in place for asset management that cover the following:

- recording of hardware and software in an asset register

Non-Conformance and Exceptions

4.5. Non-conformance to this policy must be reported to the Force Information Security Officer. The Information Security Team must approve, track and report all exceptions to this policy in accordance with a formal documented process.
