*Pre April 2014 Special Interest Markers were placed on a crime record to identify the specific type of Hate Crime (e.g. racial, homophobic, etc.). The Hate strand field was introduced into the crimes system in April 2014 to enable us to identify specific types of Hate crime. Special Interest markers are still available. For this reason, this search is a combination of the two.

Multiple Special Interest Markers can be placed on a crime record. This means that it is possible to have multiple hate crime types linked to a record. These have been outlined in the table above:

Q2) The number of those offences at question 1 that resulted in a 'Charge', broken down by financial year and hate crime type (i.e. Race, Religion etc.).
