

Do all investigations into Police Officer misconduct by your Professional Standards Department have to follow the policies and procedures set out in the Police Conduct Regulations and what would happen to the investigation if PSD failed to adhere to these procedures (i.e. would the investigation fail due to failure to follow regulations)?

All Police Officer Misconduct has to follow the correct legislation and procedures.

Any failure to adhere to the same would most likely result in a legal challenge. The nature of such a challenge would depend on the specific circumstances of the case.